Superintendent's Highlights

The 1999-2000 school year saw completion of the expansion/renovation at Dalton School and construction of the district's 10th elementary school, Skyway, which will open in Fall 2000. Planning is in full swing for the next facilities project – remodel of Coeur d'Alene High School.

We proudly made history by being the first district to have two consecutive Idaho Teachers of the Year – Judy Bieze in 1999 and Nancy Larsen in 2000. Numerous other honors included three IEA A+ awards and Steve Casey's selection as Outstanding High School Principal for Idaho.

The District made strides in strategic planning, curriculum redesign and Board policy revision. The public was involved in decision-making through forums on attendance zone changes, block scheduling and achievement standards.

The District implemented a summer intervention program to improve reading skills of 500 primary students and piloted an innovative approach to summer school at one of its middle schools.

Progress Towards Meeting District Goals

1999-00 Goals	Progress
Redesign curriculum	Teams of teachers spent several weeks of summer rewriting curriculum to add rigor and relevance and conform to State Achievement Standards, national assessments and community expectations.
Class-size reduction	Federal funds enabled the district to add six first-grade teachers last year. Plans are to add five teaching positions in the fall of 2000 to reduce class size in second grade.
Accountable and efficient fiscal management.	New software standardized student accounting procedures and is moving the district toward electronic purchase orders, timesheets and business reports.
Positive, safe school climate	The district implemented the Safe Schools Helpline, continued School Emergency Response Planning efforts and practiced lockdowns at all schools. Board policy was rewritten to add threats to the list of offenses punishable by expulsion.
Technology	The district contracted for a fiberoptic Wide Area Network to enhance technology capabilities to all schools
